

Discovering Diane 2010 AD

(Discovering Diane Francis, ww3 & the Cyberwar)

Did you know that Marshall McLuhan described World War 1 as the Railway War? And, WW2 as the Radio War?

Well, he did. You can read it in his Understanding Media of 1964.

The composer of China 70s Child (me) believes the very first opening shot of WW3 was made in late December 2009 by Diane Francis in her article... The real inconvenient truth ...The whole world needs to adopt China's one-child policy

Diane decided to duck for cover after writing the article and being interviewed by that American Catholic Bitch Laura Ingraham.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Y9--Zp-d5Zs>

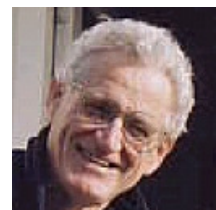

Don't tell her I told you ...but it's true.

Shortly after that, Diane went fishing for her well-earned holiday break. She is back now so help me get her involved with China's 1 Child Policy as a Planetary Vision. Visit her website www.dianefrancis.com You won't regret it...or maybe you will if you totally disagree with her which I don't !!!

WW3 seems to be gathering momentum as a cyberwar so far. It will continue trending on Google so long as bloggers and tweeters maintain their interest in this very sensitive issue of over-populating the planet with humans. We are, after all said and done, just another carbon-based life-form. You & me burp & fart along with 6.6 Billion others. The day of reckoning is nigh. Pollution happens when there are too many of us.

If you are reading this you are probably a blogger or a twitterer or both. If you are not presently involved with this type of online activity we recommend you register with www.twitter.com where you can have a lot of fun interacting with others & spreading the good word about my epic operatic work China 70s Child

If you don't like this kinda stuff then don't bother coming along on the opening night at the Beijing Opera House scheduled sometime before 2076...one hundred years after the death of Mao Zedong.

Cheers Brently